Preservation and Restoration of Traditional Architecture

David E. Lanoue, Inc. encourages you to enjoy this sampling of our building work in Southern Berkshire County in Western Massachusetts during these past 40 years.

As designers, builders and general contractors, we have sought to interpret and influence the built environment in ways that recall and complement the cultural heritage of the Berkshire region from the 18th century to the present.

It is not by chance that people are drawn to traditional architectural patterns. These patterns foster an appreciation for and a connection to the past that satisfies the yearning for a sense of place and well-being within the evolving demands of our modern world.

It is our hope that this gallery of our building styles and practices may inspire and inform your future building ideas.

On front cover, house in West Stockbridge, MA, comprising 1846 roof timber frame and trim, saved from house in nearby Sheffield with new lower timber frame of reclaimed hewn timber.

On rear cover, restored and new additions to 1840's Greek Revival home.
